HAVENARRATIVE.COM

KAHLIL GIBRAN

THE FOX

A fox looked at his shadow at sunrise and said, “I will have a camel for lunch today.” And all morning he went about looking for camels. But at noon he saw his shadow again—and he said, “A mouse will do.”